HSBC Malta Hosts Insightful Economic Presentations with Global Economist James Pomeroy

On 28 February 2025, HSBC Bank Malta welcomed clients and key stakeholders to two exclusive economic presentations led by HSBC Global Economist James Pomeroy. These events provided attendees with valuable insights into the global economic outlook amid uncertain times, reinforcing the bank's commitment to informed financial decision-making.

During the presentations, James Pomeroy delivered an in-depth analysis of key global economic trends, focusing on consumer spending, inflation rates, and broader financial market dynamics. His expertise provided attendees with a clearer understanding of the economic challenges and opportunities shaping the global landscape.

Reflecting on his visit, Pomeroy remarked, "In today's economic climate, it is crucial to discuss and understand the long-term trends that are shaping economies worldwide." His discussions underscored the importance of strategic economic foresight in navigating the complexities of the global market.

Geoffrey Fichte, CEO of HSBC Malta, highlighted the bank's commitment to keeping clients well-informed, stating, "By bringing James Pomeroy to Malta, we are fulfilling our mission to provide our clients with valuable economic insights. His expertise offers critical perspectives that help businesses manage uncertainty and identify opportunities for growth."

Jesmond Apap, Head of Global Markets at HSBC Malta, emphasised the positive reception of the event, noting, "The insights shared by James align closely with what our clients need to remain competitive. Access to expert economic analysis is essential in today's fast-moving global economy."

HSBC Malta remains dedicated to supporting businesses and financial stakeholders by offering platforms that enhance economic knowledge and strategic decision-making. These events continue to reinforce the bank's role in promoting economic growth and innovation within Malta's business community.
